New Initiatives

Traditionally violent crimes involve the use of illegal firearms. The GunStoppers Initiative focuses on soliciting information about illegal firearms in the community such as those possessed by felons, and those used in crimes. CrimeStoppers will pay up to $500 cash for information leading to a felony arrest and recovery of an illegal gun in Durham.

Each month, officers and community volunteers go door-to-door speaking to residents and passing out information in areas which had the most gun violence in the previous month. They have done canvasses at McDougald Terrace and in the East Main Street/Hyde Park, Liberty Street/Grace Lane and East Main Street/Elm Street areas.

Body Camera Forums – The Durham Police Department (DPD) held six public listening forums in May and June to give citizens an opportunity to speak about the department's potential use of body-worn cameras. The public forums provided an opportunity for attendees to speak openly to police staff about body camera-related issues that are important to them. The intent was for police staff to gather feedback from residents to help guide and shape implementation of, and policy for, body-worn cameras, if approved.

AEDs for the Police Department's Utility Terrain Vehicles – The Durham Police Department equipped its utility terrain vehicles (UTVs) with automatic external defibrillators (AEDs). The UTVs are frequently used by officers to patrol the American Tobacco Trail. The vehicles are also used at events such as festivals and in response to calls where the terrain is difficult to navigate.

Adding these AEDs to the UTVs increases the ability to respond quickly with the right equipment in case of a cardiac emergency.

The Durham Police Department has 32 Philips Heartstart FRX AEDs. There are AEDs at Police Headquarters, every substation and the firing range. There are also two AEDs assigned to the Training Division that are carried during runs with the recruits.

All sworn DPD employees maintain CPR certification. In 2013, all civilian DPD employees were required to complete CPR training.

"It was refreshing to see the high volume of kids that came out and participated. This was a good start in attempting to attain our goal of building a rapport with the residents so that we can better address the quality of life concerns for the area,” officers wrote in their monthly report.

The Southside residents also advised that they wanted to start a Neighborhood Watch so Sgt. V.D. Bynum reached out to Master Officer Reese Carson of the Community Resource Unit for assistance. On May 4, Master Officer Carson met with the residents at the Southside Outreach Center to implement a Neighborhood Watch program. District 4 Captain Terrence Sembly, Sgt. Bynum and Sgt. Raul Garcia were also in attendance. “It was a great turnout and the residents were elated and very enthusiastic about the endeavor,” officers wrote. Residents chose a chairperson and block captains at the meeting.

Squad members attended the Southside Neighborhood Play Streets event on June 13. This event was another effort through the Southside Outreach Coordinator, the police and other sponsors in continuing the goal of revitalizing the Southside Community. The event featured a Zumba demonstration, the Bouncing Bulldog Jump Rope Team, the Dancing Jewels Majorette Team, line dancing and more. Although it was a very hot day, the residents came out in numbers and were afforded the opportunity to see the officers participating and enjoying being in the company of the residents outside of a police work capacity.

Bicycle and Pedestrian Safety – On May 8, Sgt. Brian Massengill with the Bicycle Unit gave a “Let’s Go NC”/”Watch for Me NC” presentation to approximately 200 students at Global Scholars Academy. The Let’s Go NC curriculum focuses on bicycle and pedestrian for school age kids. Sgt. Massengill spoke to the whole school for about an hour and showed them several videos on pedestrian safety including crossing the street and how to be safe in parking lots. He also showed the students how to wear a bicycle helmet and how to install bicycle lights.

W.G. Pearson Community Event – On May 23, HEAT 4 investigators attended a community event at W.G Pearson Elementary School and facilitated a presentation on preventing youths from being involved in gang activity.

Click It or Ticket – The Traffic Services Unit focused on seatbelt usage and safety during May as part of the statewide Click It or Ticket campaign. Officers issued a total of 301 seatbelt citations at 30 checkpoints. Since its inception 22 years ago, the “Click It or Ticket” program has increased driver seat belt awareness and usage rates and reduced fatalities across North Carolina, according to the North Carolina Governor’s Highway Safety Program.

Community Training in Dealing with Law Enforcement Event – Assistant Chief Winslow Forbes spearheaded a community training day through the D.L. Forbes Youth Foundation on April 11 at the Holton Resource Center. The event included discussions about police/community relationships, police use of force and rights of citizens. There were also role playing exercises and videos about various scenarios faced by officers. A Walk in Unity and Bull City Play Streets followed the discussion. Members of the D.L. Forbes Foundation’s Honor Guard partnered with members of the Durham Police Department’s Honor Guard and several officers and members of the Durham Police Department’s command staff attended the event. There were approximately 150 attendees.

Hazmat Training Exercise – Durham Police Department’s Selective Enforcement Team (SET), Biological Chemical Emergency Response Team (BCERT) and Hostage Negotiation Team participated in a multi-agency training exercise at the Army Research Office on South Miami Boulevard on May 26. The units implemented a simulated patrol response to a scenario in which an employee drives his vehicle containing biological/chemical items into the parking lot and plants explosives inside the building. Then, wearing a suicide vest with explosives, the employee takes hostages.

As part of the training, an incident command was established that included participation from the Durham Fire Department, Durham County Emergency Medical Services, Durham County Sheriff’s Bomb Squad, Hazmat, Durham County Fire Marshal/Emergency Management and Federal Protective Service Police (Homeland Security). Civilian volunteers were employees of the Army Research Office who played the hostage roles.

Attempted Suicide – Officer Jacob West was dispatched to an attempted suicide call on April 21. When he arrived at the residence, he could hear a vehicle running inside a locked garage. Officer West entered the garage and found a 48-year-old man lying unconscious on the garage floor. West was able to get the man out of the garage and the man regained consciousness by the time EMTs arrived.

Assistance to Family in Need – Officer J.R. Hitchings (Squad 2-B) received a call on May 31 to assist a family. A single mother of two, one with special needs, did not have any place to stay. Officer Hitchings made numerous calls to agencies in Durham, Orange and Wake counties to find a place for them, but he was unable to locate anywhere they could stay. At one point, he thought he had found a place in Orange County and bought gas so the woman and her children could drive to the location. Unfortunately, this prospect fell through so Officer Hitchings obtained a hotel room for Saturday and Sunday nights for the family until they could go to Social Services for help on Monday. “Officer Hitchings showed the utmost compassion and concern for this family and went well beyond what was required of him that night,” his supervisor wrote.

Emergency Tourniquets – Twice during June, officers from Squad 1-D were able to use an emergency tourniquet to treat potentially life-threatening injuries.

On June 11, Officer Richard Armstrong used an emergency tourniquet and his medical training to help a shooting victim who was bleeding heavily from a wound to his femoral artery. Officer Armstrong, who was four blocks away when the call was dispatched, was able to completely stop the bleeding by the time EMS workers arrived on scene a short time later. The shooting victim is now recovering from his injuries.

On June 30, Officer David Cramer was dispatched to a disturbance/stabbing call on Junction Road. When he arrived, he found two men bleeding from wounds. One man was lying inside an apartment, bleeding heavily from stab wounds. A second man was in the parking lot.

Cramer and other officers detained the man in the parking lot and then Cramer checked again on the man in the apartment, who was unconscious and still bleeding heavily. Cramer, who carries an emergency tourniquet in his duty bag, used the tourniquet on the man’s upper arm, which stopped the severe bleeding from the man’s brachial artery. Durham County EMS arrived on scene seconds later and transported the man to the hospital, where he underwent treatment for his injuries.

Officer Armstrong has been an advocate for equipping officers with emergency medical supplies such as emergency tourniquets to help officers and citizens survive life-threatening injuries when minutes count.

Two years ago, as part of his required recruit Neighborhood Portfolio Exercise, Officer Armstrong made a compelling presentation about the need to equip officers with officer lifesaver kits, which would include emergency tourniquets. Officer Armstrong was trained in the use of these supplies while serving in the United States Marine Corps. He said the emergency tourniquets can be used to treat traumatic injuries from shootings, car accidents or other incidents that cause severe blood loss from limb trauma. In these cases, minutes matter and treatment could be started before EMS arrives on scene.

Several months ago, Armstrong supplied the officers on his squad, including Cramer, with emergency tourniquets. The Police Department recently received approval from city officials to use asset forfeiture funds to purchase approximately 380 emergency tourniquets for patrol officers.

Durham County EMS has provided in-service training to officers about how and when to use the tourniquets. The emergency tourniquets can be used to treat traumatic injuries from shootings, car accidents or other incidents that cause severe blood loss from limb trauma. In these cases, minutes matter and treatment could be started before EMS arrives on scene.

Durham Jaycees 2015 Outstanding Young Public

Servant – In April Officer David Kub was honored by the Durham Jaycees as the 2015 Young Public Servant for Durham.

Officer Kub joined the Durham Police Department in 2012 and was described in the nomination as “an enthusiastic young police officer who has demonstrated a desire to go above and beyond every day while at work. As a rookie officer, he designed a pedestrian safety initiative that was presented to city leaders. He consistently works to broaden his skills as an officer and investigator and to become a better resource for the citizens of Durham.”

One of his patrol supervisors summed up his impression of Officer Kub by saying, “He is the guy you want to come when you call 911. He will take the time to listen to you and he will do everything you need to have done.”
